Using Pinterest for Marketing

With its powerful visual images that are easily shared, Pinterest is a very useful tool for marketing. Pinterest is widely used by nonprofit organizations, educational institutions, individuals and the private sector to promote brands, causes, issues, and stories that are important to them.

Pinterest is rapidly growing in popularity, and it is now the third most popular social media tool, after Twitter and Facebook. To date, only a minority of literacy organizations are using it. By not doing so, we may be missing out on a new opportunity to market our services!

Literacy organizations can use Pinterest to:

- Promote their services to adult learners
- Promote their services to other service providers, their communities, donors and funders
- Raise awareness of literacy
- Promote fundraising events
- Increase support for their organization
- Raise awareness of special events
- Link with other organizations and individuals who have common interests
- Appeal to people who learn best via visual images

We would recommend starting small. Think about your target audiences and assess the most important groups you would like to reach. Then, create boards and Pins that meet their needs and interests using the step-by-step process described in our Pinterest 101 training module.

Welcome to ‘Pinterest for Marketing’, one of the training modules from Community Literacy of Ontario’s Social Media Marketing project. This project is designed to develop resources to help Ontario’s literacy agencies, and others, use social media for marketing. Click here to access our resources.
Once your Pinterest account is set up and ready to go, you’ll need to let people know you are on Pinterest.

Be sure to include a link to your account in your email signature, on your website, on your Twitter feed and on your Facebook page.

In short, anywhere you have a web presence, let people know that you are on Pinterest!

It is also a good idea to add the “Pin It” button to your website in order to make it easy for people to pin things from your website to their Pinterest boards. Click here to learn how to do this.
Sharing Your Boards and Pins

Remember, your Pins and boards are not only available on Pinterest; they can be actively shared on other media, including email, Twitter, Facebook and other social media. Pinterest makes it extremely easy to share your Pins with your stakeholders – and the world!

Here is an example of how CLO’s entire “Literacy – Why it Matters” board could be easily shared via email, Facebook and other social media, by just clicking “Send Board”.

Individual Pins can also be shared, via Twitter, Facebook, email and other types of social media.

By clicking “Send Pin”, you could easily share a Pin with stakeholders to promote agency events, share success stories or engage in other marketing activities.
When you post new Pins to your boards, Pinterest will give you the option of also sharing them on Twitter. We recommend only occasionally posting your Pins to Twitter, so as not to overwhelm your followers. You can select “Post to Twitter” for a photo that you do want to share, then deselect that option for other Pins.

When you find Pins you like on boards belonging to others, Pinterest not only lets you easily pin them to your own boards, but they can also be quickly shared via Twitter, Facebook, email, or your website by clicking “send”.

Marketing Examples

Here are some examples of how literacy organizations, employment services, other nonprofit organizations, the business community, and the “social media greats” are using Pinterest for marketing.

Literacy Examples

Community Literacy of Ontario

- Community Literacy of Ontario created various boards to help us market issues of importance to us. Our board “Literacy – Why It Matters” is designed to promote the importance of literacy to the general public. It includes statistics and information on literacy issues in Ontario, Canada and beyond.

- CLO created its “Love Letters to Literacy” board to market this campaign to community stakeholders.

- We developed our “CLO E-Books and Other Resources” board to promote our E-Books and other online resources to members and external customers.

Brant Skills Centre

- The Brant Skills Centre has a dynamic Pinterest account that they use for promoting their learning centre and sharing instructional resources on topics such as reading, writing and math.

- The centre also uses Pinterest to promote a fundraising event: their annual Spelling Bee.
Street Haven Learning Centre

- Street Haven Learning Centre has a number of motivational boards which they use for marketing purposes. They eloquently explain their goals for setting up a Pinterest account: “We are using Pinterest in our class in the hope of bringing the world at large into our conversations about dreams and goals”.

- Their board "I am Woman..." features inspiring women and quotes that are sure to appeal to clients and supporters of their Centre and services.

- Their "Adult Literacy and Learning" board promotes literacy and programming they offer.

Literacy Council of South Temiskaming

- The Literacy Council of South Temiskaming has a variety of interesting boards, on topics such as literacy information, inspirational quotes, writing activities, grammar, job search and more.

- In terms of marketing, check out their board “Little Free Library”. This board markets a special literacy initiative, namely, LCST’s Little Free Library.

The Employment and Education Centre

- The Employment and Education Centre has several boards which provide a quick and easy method for promoting their services and resources to clients. Their “Services, Workshops, Classes, Webinars” board gives an overview of the numerous opportunities available through The Employment and Education Centre.

- They also offer a great board called “How to/What to do if....” that provides information for clients on accessing community services such as legal aid, clothing, meals, shelter services, etc.

Employment Services of YMCA Simcoe-Muskoka

- Employment Services of YMCA Simcoe-Muskoka’s Pinterest account is geared towards marketing the services they provide to job seekers.

- Their Pins include overviews of their services such as job search support, workshops, job listings, assistance in writing resumes and cover letters, and more.
Imagine Canada

- Imagine Canada has an abundance of boards that showcase their programs and services. One great example is their board “Member Profiles” where they promote their member organizations.

- Their board "Corporate Community Investment" promotes their donors and corporate relationships.

- They also have a board dedicated to "Volunteers" which is loaded with valuable resources and information promoting the importance of volunteer involvement.

Toronto Public Library

- The Toronto Public Library has an interesting and entertaining presence on Pinterest, with boards showcasing vintage posters and postcards, books and architecture.

- Their "Kids Reading Fun" board is full of creative and fun literacy information that markets their services to clients with children.

- The board for "Special Events at the Bram and Bluma Appel Salon" includes a wide assortment of Pins promoting special events.
Better Homes and Gardens

- Better Homes and Gardens is very well represented on Pinterest. They have a great number of boards aimed at marketing to their customers.

- Their "Pin & Win" and "BHG Pinner of the Month" boards are set up to engage readers and customers and give them the opportunity to create their own boards with content from the Better Homes & Gardens website for chances to win.

- They showcase their customers on Pinterest via creative campaigns such as the "BHG Pinner of the Month: July".

Starbucks

- Starbucks has a number of boards aimed at engaging their customers in the Starbucks brand and atmosphere. Interestingly, their boards are not aimed at directly marketing their products or stores, but are rather geared towards marketing a feeling or image to their customers.

- They share the things that inspire them and market their brand image. Examples include their boards "Mornings" and "Beautiful Objects".

Michaels

- Michaels Stores lend themselves well to Pinterest marketing. They have pinboards packed full of tips and tricks, “how-to” videos, and tutorials which generally feature products that can be found in their stores. They also directly market to their customers with pinboards such as "Gifts for Kids" which features popular items for kids that they feature in their stores.

- Another example is their pinboard "In-store Featured Pinterest Ideas" which is designed to promote their products to both online and in-store customers. This board includes Inspired-by-Pinterest displays.

Examples from the Social Media Greats

The following organizations are well-known in Pinterest circles for their effective and engaging boards. Be sure to check out these helpful examples of Pinterest excellence.

American Cancer Society

- The American Cancer Society has a variety of boards that support their marketing efforts. The following boards increase awareness about cancer, share stories of hope about people facing cancer, encourage fundraising, and support volunteering.

  o Stories of Hope
  o Run with us
  o Share fundraising ideas
  o Become a volunteer
World Vision

- World Vision presents inspirational photos via boards that tell people about their mission, highlight their work in the world, encourage child sponsorship, and highlight the benefits of donating to their organization:
  - Why World Vision
  - Sponsorship
  - Economic Development

World Wildlife Fund

- World Wildlife Fund uses Pinterest for marketing by creating boards that raise awareness of their cause, showcase their organization, and encourage donations:
  - Help our Planet
  - Gifts for a Cause
  - WWF Videos
